MARKET COMMENTARY

March proved to be a difficult and unsettling month for global markets as rising geopolitical tensions, most notably the war in Iran, combined with a sudden repricing of interest rate expectations, drove a broad move away from risk across asset classes. Equity markets sold off heavily, with the S&P 500 falling 5.0% and the Nasdaq down 4.7%. European equities were hit harder, reflecting their greater sensitivity to energy price shocks, as the Euro STOXX 50 declined 9.1%, while the FTSE 100 fell 6.2%, partially cushioned by its significant exposure to energy and commodity producers. The bond market was at the centre of the adjustment; signs that the Federal Reserve and Bank of England would need to remain cautious on rate cuts, given inflationary pressures from higher oil prices, triggered a violent sell off in government bonds. US 10 year Treasury yields rose nearly 38 basis points while UK 10-year Gilt yields surged almost 68 basis points, one of the sharpest monthly moves in years. Commodities told the clearest geopolitical story. Brent Crude oil soared by 43.8% as fears over supply disruptions in the Middle East fuelled a substantial risk premium. By contrast, gold fell 11.2%, giving back earlier safe haven gains as higher interest rates and a stronger US dollar reduced its appeal to investors. In currency markets, sterling weakened against the US dollar falling around 2.0% and remained broadly flat against the euro appreciating by 0.3%.
