Market Commentary

July provided some much-needed relief for investors across global markets, following on from a particularly pessimistic end to the second quarter of 2022. Amongst continued discouraging inflation data and another base rate hike from the Federal Reserve, the US officially entered a 'technical recession' following two consecutive months of GDP decline. However, with much of the macroeconomic challenges already priced in, second quarter earnings were surprisingly encouraging. The S&P 500, Euro STOXX 50 and FTSE 100 all finished the month up by 9.2%, 7.5% and 3.7%, respectively. For its second consecutive month of decline, Brent Crude oil finished the month down by 0.9%. In fixed income markets, yields on US, UK and German 10-year bonds all fell by 36, 37 and 52 basis points, respectively. The pound finished the month flat against the US dollar and strengthened by 2.6% against the euro.

Key Contributors to Return

IG Group's shares increased by 15.3% after the company reported its annual results above expectations, lifting the dividend and announcing a £150m buyback programme. Wells Fargo's shares increased by 12.0% along with other US bank stocks, despite missing consensus estimates, as the US Federal Reserve's rate hikes boosted net interest income and margins.

Key Detractors from Return

Admiral Group's shares declined by 18.6% after UK motor insurance peers Sabre and Direct Line issued profit warnings, highlighting a weak outlook and higher than expected cost inflation. Verizon Communications' shares declined by 7.9% after peer AT&T lowered its free cash flow outlook for the year noting consumers are putting off paying their phone bills amidst record high US inflation.
